Greece Rescues Turkish Ship

ATHENS — The Turkish Navy's flagship was towed back to a Turkish port with Greek assistance on Wednesday after running aground, Foreign Minister Theodoros Pangalos said.

A Greek statement said the frigate Yavuz ran aground in the straits between the Greek island of Kos and the Turkish coast.

The incident is noteworthy because Greek and Turkish vessels have been playing cat and mouse in the Aegean Sea since January when the two countries came close to a major conflict over rights to an uninhabited islet. (Reuters)
