

GUARDIAN 19.2.9

Strike closes Greek sites

STRIKING Greek guards voted yesterday to keep the Acropolis and other classical sites closed for a second week despite the growing disgruntlement of tourists, writes Helena Smith in Athens.

The strikers said the sites would remain shut until demands for staff and salary increases were met. They are paid £480 a month.

The government has urged local courts to declare the strike illegal.